A Vision for the Matheson

GREG YOUNG, BOARD PRESIDENT

Here at the Matheson, we have worked diligently over the last year and a half to keep our ship steady in today's turbulent waters. Because of the great work of our staff, board of directors, advisory council, and especially because of You, we have not only survived, but have become more vital to the community we serve.

My focus is on building a sustainable future so the Matheson can continue to serve our members and community. We are working to reach that goal in several ways:

- Building strong bonds with our community partners.
- Expanding our donor base and including more ways in which to give.
- Setting aside funds to preserve our historic buildings and collections.
- Working with stakeholders on the Sweetwater Branch Greenway initiative.

As Ken Burns said in a recent PBS interview, "stories liberate us from the tyranny of our past." At the Matheson we share our stories through historic preservation and engaging programming. I hope you will continue to share in that important work.

Volunteer Profile: Tina Fields

The museum is embarking on a major project to fully catalog the contents of the historic 1867 Matheson House. Our Collections Coordinator, Chloe Richardson, is working with one of our wonderful board members, Tina Fields, to inventory and condition report the furniture and decorative arts in the house. Our goal is to fully document the Matheson House collection so that these objects can be included in our online database and be readily available for public access and research in the future.

Tina Fields (pictured above) is a retired librarian and school teacher. She and her husband, Donald, have been in Gainesville since 2014. Tina joined the Matheson's Board of Directors in 2019 and has been delighted to share her professional expertise for this project.

The members of the auxiliary were known as the "Pink Ladies." The Auxiliary still operates today at UF Health - volunteers provide assistance to staff and comfort to patients, as well as raise funds for the hospital.

McCarthy Moment: The Johns Committee in Florida

In 1956, State Senator Charley Eugene Johns created the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee. Better known as the Johns Committee, it tried to uncover subversive activity in Florida.

Their first target was the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). The Committee used Communists as an excuse to prevent integration in public schools. The NAACP's members and lawyers proved too hard for the Committee to beat. Soon an embarrassed Johns looked for easier victims.

At this time, Americans thought being gay was a shameful mental disorder. It was something to hide and keep secret. It was also illegal in Florida. This secrecy made gay people more vulnerable to the persecution of the Johns Committee. Committee members threatened people with exposure and prison if they did not cooperate. This reign of terror led to dozens of professors and students leaving the university. Although we will never know everyone the Committee hurt, this exhibition seeks to tell their stories.

*The "McCarthy Moment" exhibition does contain sensitive information, including self-harm, sexual acts, and persecution of the LGBTQ+ community. Museum staff is available if any visitor would like more information before entering the exhibition.

Trailblazers: 150 Years of Alachua County Women

This exhibition highlights the lives and accomplishments of eleven women from cities throughout Alachua County. We will tell their stories, some for the first time, to call attention to the oft forgotten contributions of women in our history and in the history of Alachua County. While we are unable to call attention to every woman who has made an impact on the county, these eleven women represent various backgrounds, experiences, and fields of work, all of which are significant to the past and present success of Alachua County.

The eleven women featured in the exhibition are:

- Sarah Hamilton Matheson (1901-1996)
- Dr. Sarah Lucretia Robb (1852-1937)
- Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings (1896-1953)
- Marjorie Harris Carr (1951-1997)
- Vivian Washington Filer (1938-present)
- Daphne Duval Williams (1906-2010)
- Judith Brown (1941-1991)
- Margaret Tebeau (1839-1924)
- Clara Floyd Gehan (1901-1992)
- Mary Etta Cubberly (1870-1950)
- Emmaline Buchholz (1887-1973)

Mackenzie Pizzio curated the "Trailblazers" exhibit as a student intern from UF.
